One avenue

Though control and educational dictatorship would result from centralized control of all higher public education in the state, Dr. John J. Neumaier, Moorhead State College president, said at a meeting in St. Paul Tuesday.

He expressed this opinion before the legislative commission on higher education and a group of representatives of the University of Minnesota regents, the state college board, and the state board of education which the commission had summoned. Purpose of the meeting was to discuss the board of regents' taking over the state colleges and junior colleges.

What Dr. Neumaier said makes sense. What he suggested is a possibility.

Under the present system of no centralization there is healthy competition. No one will argue about the value of competition.

Each type of college in the state knows what its job is and knows best how to do it. If the University took over, it would be starting from the bottom or else it would have to revise the college system entirely to fit into its pattern. Is their pattern that desirable for all the state's colleges?

One big education system in the state would deal the death blow to the state's private colleges. As long as the private colleges are strong, the state colleges will compete with them and themselves gain strength.

If they go, there will no longer be that healthy influence.

ence. If they go, Minnesota's students will have no choice. In Minnesota there would be only one avenue to truth, which is the end of education. We do not want such cloistered virtues within our education system.

The argument of Arthur Naftalin, commissioner of education, was that the University had the "know-how," that the move would "decentralize the University" and make its benefits available to everyone in the state, that the "problem of higher education" would be solved.

These arguments are somewhat airy.

What is "know-how" and how come the state colleges haven't picked it up in the last 50 years if it anything that can be defined?

How do you decentralize by centralizing? Sounds like word play.

What is the "problem" of higher education? Everything seems to be thriving in the state colleges with bigger enrollments, expansion of all kinds.

Let us have some concrete reasons like Dr. Neumaier's before we do any leaping.

From the cloister

How to do it yourself!

With final exams looming nearer each day, a word of advice to the freshmen is in order. The most important part of the exams is the preparation. Be sure to read all three pages of your quarter's notes thoroughly. This will provide all the preparation necessary to get an A grade.

If your notes are incomplete, you will have to look elsewhere for your knowledge. A greenback in the blue

Why join? Let's limit!

P.O. box 47

To the editor:

Why do students join so many organizations on campus? In high school it was to get a lot of activities behind their names in the annual. What is their reason now?

I think it would be a good idea to limit the number of clubs each student may belong to, and set a grade level that must be met before anyone is allowed to join the clubs of his choice.

Some students join four or five clubs and don't put anything into any of them. If they were limited to one or two, they could put themselves into their organization and accomplish something.

This would probably lead to the abolition of many of the small, incidental organizations that seem to be springing up constantly, and give way to more important, objective organizations.

Clubbable

To the editor:

It is well known by all Americans that "all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights." And in the United States Constitution there is a provision that "Congress shall make no law... abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press." It is amazing — the number of people in the U.S. today who do not stick up for their rights, who will not speak up and state their complaints and ideas when given the opportunity.

People everywhere complain about various things and are continually condemning and slandering while going about their everyday duties.

They will complain, condemn, protest, and gossip, but when faced with the chance to state their ideas where it will do some good or possibly bring about results they remain mum as a clam.

This is also true on the MSC campus. Students continually complain. They give reasons why some things should or should not be done, yet do not make their ideas known where it will count.

We have a school paper which has more than once stated that any letters written to its editor will be printed. Therefore, any students who have any complaints to make or constructive ideas to give should make them known. Write to the paper and state your ideas. Progress is made by men of action, not by people who sit back and howl. Stick up for your rights!

Darrell Zicafoose

To the editor:

Why can't we have some decent parking lots at MSC instead of the sooty ash piles that we now have? A car can't be left in one of the lots now for more than a couple of days without looking like it just came out of a soot-infested furnace flue.

Rooms in the boys' dormitory on the south side can't go for more than a day without having a film of dust over everything. It seems like it wouldn't take such an awful lot of effort or money to put some kind of a surface on the parking areas to get rid of the filthy conditions now prevailing.

Either that or the school should install an automatic car wash at some convenient point in each parking area and exchange the boys' and girls' dormitories so that the girls would have an excellent opportunity to practice some of their house cleaning.

Erickson gets shiner; represents student body

by Diane Fox

"No, I did not walk into a door!" laughed Dean Erickson, athletic commissioner.

The beautiful shiner, he explained patiently, was the result of a wrestling match. Besides his commission office, Dean is also co-captain of the football team, president of Ballard Council, and a member of the wrestling and baseball teams, Major-Minor Club, and Iota Alpha, MSC's industrial arts fraternity.

A junior from Lowry, Minn., Dean is majoring in industrial arts and plans to teach on the secondary level.

His job as athletic commissioner, he informed me, includes helping set up the athletic budget and acting as the student representative to the Athletic Policies Commission, which sets up our sports schedules.

"Something I would like to see made clear," he declared, "is that we student commissioners represent the entire student body. If students have any complaints or suggestions we are really anxious to see what we can do about them."

He also said it should be stressed that unless the student body does take advantage of the commission, the organization is, in effect, ineffective, because it will have nothing to represent.

At the close of the interview, Dean was still sticking to his story about the shiner, but I can't resist adding that it really was a beaut!

Hettwer, Montplaisir, Bankole brighten team

by David Bloemendaal

Bill Garland, MSC wrestling coach, believes after one week of practice that wrestling team prospects are slightly better than last year. They finished with a three won and ten loss record in competition last year.

The first meet will be on Dec. 6, when they wrestle NDAC before the basketball game with Superior at the MSC gym.

A big handicap this season is going to be the lack of experience of most of the boys on the team. A lot of polishing will have to be done. The team will have to rely greatly on the experience of a few of the returning lettermen.

Two returning boys who are expected to produce good results are Henry Hettwer and Rufus Bankhole. Both boys placed second in the conference last year. Hettwer also earned a point in the NAIA meet.

Dave Montplaisir, who just returned from the service, and is a veteran of wrestling at MSC before is also expected to help boost the team. Montplaisir wrestled while he was in the service.

Mr. Garland figures there is somewhere near 20 boys out right now and should be a few more when the football boys start practice. So far there are 12 freshmen out with Floyd Hoselton being one of the best prospects.

The team is especially short on wrestlers in the lower weight brackets.

Captains Elected

by Dave Montplaisir

Sherman Moe, senior from Ada and Dennis Anderson, senior from Moorhead were elected co-captains of the 1958-59 Dragon basketball team.

Moe, a forward, has been a varsity performer since his freshman year and has been one of the all time scoring leaders at MSC.

The other forward, Dennis Anderson has been on the varsity for the past two years and this year made the switch from guard to forward. Anderson scored 23 points at his new position last Saturday night against the alumni.

Gene Goedel from Wadena is the only other senior on the varsity squad. Goedel is after his third letter in basketball and is one of the finest all around athletes ever to attend MSC.

Center Rodney Zimmerman from Herman is the tallest man on the varsity squad at 6'4." Zimmerman is a junior and is starting his third year as a varsity performer.

Allen Shogren, a 6'4" freshman from Alexandria, is another tall man that is expected to help in the rebounding and scoring department.

MSC will be able to boast of the smallest guard combination in this area with Dale Champ, a junior from Glyndon and James Brown, a freshman from Brainerd. Champ lettered last year and Brown was given all state recognition at Brainerd last year.

A junior transfer from Bethel College in Minneapolis, Robert Pommerenke, is expected to help the Dragons this year with his outside shooting. Pommerenke lettered two years at Bethel.

Allen Santwire, a sophomore letterman from Halstad, is the tallest of the guards at six feet. Santwire teamed with Darrel Mack at Mahanomen high school in 1957 to form an excellent 1-2 scoring punch. Mack transferred from the University of North Dakota this fall to give MSC added strength in the forward line.

Another freshman who is expected to give additional help at the forward line is James Nagel of Brenkenridge. Nagel was an outstanding scorer in high school and should help the Dragons a lot.

This year's team should show an improvement over last year. While it doesn't have a lot of height, its added speed should make for interesting basketball. This team has a sprinkling of age and experience with three freshmen, two sophomores, three juniors and three seniors.

Erickson to speak

"Now, you don't want to deprive Reading?" will be Dr. Allen G. Erickson's topic when he speaks at the Nov. 20 New York Mills PTA meeting. Dr. Erickson is the reading consultant at Moorhead State College.
